

The Times Cheltenham Science Festival 2010 Needs Volunteers!

Are You....

- Hardworking?
- Enthusiastic?
- Reliable?
- Available 7 - 14 June 2010?

Want to....

- Meet some of the world's leading scientists?
- Get involved with science communication at its best?
- Gain experience of running events?

As a Thank you....

- Accommodation and Food
 - Travel expenses
- Free entry into events
- PLUS great experience

Then get in touch!

Previous volunteers have said...

'A totally random week - full of good experiences - a real team effort.'

'I'm still thinking of the fantastic time I had at the Cheltenham Science Festival!'

'I never thought a combination of exhaustion, alcohol, nervous energy and science could be so much fun!'

'A fantastic week, have enjoyed every talk/workshop I've been to!'

If you're interested, please send your CV and a covering letter explaining why you'd like to volunteer at the festival to luiza.patorski@cheltenhamfestivals.com, by the 29th March. Or call 01242 774624 for an informal chat to find out more.

The Times Cheltenham Science Festival is a five-day extravaganza of science, engineering, technology and arts, with events for adults, schools and for the whole family. Aimed purely at the general public, the festival covers a range of topics from tissue engineering and aerodynamics to the science of chocolate and sleep. We are currently finalising this year's programme but please visit www.cheltenhamfestivals.com for more information and to view the programme when it is released.